REDFIELD DEFENDS COMMERCE FIGURES

Secretary Declares Export Records Are As Complete As It Is Possible to Obtain.

Secretary of Commerce Redfield, after reading the statement from the Chamber of Commerce of the United States to the general effect that statistics of our foreign commerce are worthless, and scoring the methods of their compilation, said that the statements were largely true, but that they were a little behind the times. New regulations have been published, the Secretary said, to provide greater accuracy in these figures. These were issued jointly by the Treasury and Commerce Department, and it is believed that they will largely rectify the matter complained of "The Department of Commerce," he said. 'does not gather these statistics. They are given to us by the Treasury Department, and are compiled for publication by us. The import figures are at present as near correct as it is possible under the present laws to get them, and are generally accurate. New regulations provide that shippers must declare exports, and that the manifest declare exports, and that the manifest of every vessel sailing must be complete before that vessel is given clearance papers. The new regulations will be effective February 1, the effective date having been postponed from January 1, to give shippers and steamship men more time to acquaint themselves with the requirements.

Declares Department's Exports Records Are Entirely Worthless

Branding as worthless the statistics prepared by the United States Govern ment on the nation's foreign commerce. and scoring the methods by which they are prepared, a special committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States, which has investigated the subject, is prepared to present a report to the annual meeting of the national chamber, which convenes in this clip.

Chairman A. W. Douglas, of St. Louis says the figures as published until lately in the reports of the Department of commerce have been in many respects so inacturate as to make it impossible for experts to render an approximate estimate of the percentage of error, except to say that it is exceedingly great.

The statistics of this country are characterized as the least accurate of statistics relating to foreign commerce. In substantiation of this charge, the reof Foreign and Domestic Commerce for the fiscal year preceding the war, in which the methods pursued by customs house officials are referred to as obsocause it laid a tax on the iron and steel industries of the north, without imposing a burden on the cotton of the South; unfair, because it proposed taxes on gas engines necessary in agriculture and industry, and because it proposed a levy on incomes as low as $1,500; and the defeat of such measures as the shipping bill, the need for more money might be met.

His own plan of revenue included, he said, a higher tariff, steeper super-tax on incomes over $20,000 and an inheritance tax. But for the Democratic froetrade legislation, which would have ruined American industry save for the war, he said, emergency revenue legislation would not be necessary.

The war reminded of this today.

Dr. Paul Stratton, of New York, a minister of the Presbyterian faith, was a student in President Wilson's class in iurisprudence at Princeton University in 1900. The Safest Investment are those that do not fluctuate during dis-turbed conditions of the money or stock mar-kets. First deed of trust notes (first moti-gages), well secured on real estate in the District of Columbia, constitute "gilt-edgs" investments. They do not depend upon the financial responsibility of individuals or cor-porations for their stability, and are exempt from taxation as personal property. We can supply such investments in amounts from 1500 upward. Send for booklet "Concerning Loans and Investments."
